

HUSSON AND SSMRV

Gain a Competitive Edge with an MBA from Husson University

Through a collaboration between SSMRV and Husson University, SSMRV students can now earn their MBA degree, a credential necessary for leadership opportunities in business. This two-year program, designed for SSMRV students earning their Bachelor of Business Administration (BBA), is delivered online in year one and on Husson's campus in year two.

MBA Studies at Husson University

MBA students in Husson's College of Business study in Harold Alford Hall, a state-of-the-art educational center that features a financial center, an extended reality lab, and agile workspaces where faculty, students and members of the business community collaborate to deliver innovative solutions to business challenges.

Students within the MBA program study under faculty who are business leaders and skilled educators – experts who bring years of experience in fields such as business management, hospitality, software engineering, international finance, nonprofit management, counterterrorism, law and information technology.

ELIGIBILITY AND PROGRAM OVERVIEW

Eligibility Requirements for the MBA Program

SSMRV students in their final year of study in the Bachelor of Business Administration (BBA) program are eligible for this program.

Program Overview

The joint MBA program consists of two parts:

- Year One, begins in January. Students will take 3 online courses from Husson along with their BBA coursework during their final year of study. Students must complete their 3-year bachelor's degree from SSMRV and 3 online courses from Husson before they can enroll in part two of the program.
- Year Two, begins in January of the following year. Students will take 9 courses on-site at Husson University in Bangor, Maine.

Students must complete both parts with a final cumulative average of 3.0 or higher to earn the MBA.

LIVING ON CAMPUS

Husson University's suburban campus is situated on 84 hectares in a circular layout, allowing for easy access to classrooms, library, dining facilities and the new Wellness Center for student health.

Accommodations on campus include four traditional residence halls, as well as the Darling Learning Center, which offers suite-style living spaces. The newest living option, the townhouses, offers four bedrooms and two baths per unit, as well as a full kitchen, living room and a washer and dryer within each townhouse.

Several dining options are available on campus, including the Dickerman Dining Center, which offers made-to-order entrees and a variety of international cuisine. Several meal choices are always available to accommodate diet restrictions.

The Clara Swan Center provides the Husson community with the resources needed to optimize physical health. The fitness studio is equipped with weight training machines, free weights and other exercise equipment. Webber Pool is a 25-yard, six-lane competitive pool open to all students for conditioning and recreation.

Husson students can ride on Bangor city buses at no charge, making it easy to shop or visit the downtown area.

About Husson University

Husson is a small, private nonprofit university located in beautiful mid-central Maine, near the coast, lakes, and mountains the state is known for. For more than 120 years, Husson University has prepared future leaders through innovative undergraduate and graduate programs. Located in Bangor, Maine, Husson provides an excellent education that is also affordable, making a degree from Husson a smart investment.

Husson is home to the largest College of Business in Maine. Graduates have achieved success as entrepreneurs, corporate executives, business managers and consultants. Husson's MBA program helps students strengthen their leadership, communication and critical thinking skills, while gaining knowledge that can be applied to almost any industry.

Husson is an academically prominent institution with small class sizes. I've seen the cultural sensitivity that the administration provides to students from all over the world. The international office, in particular, exceeds expectations by giving each student individual attention.
